Editorial

Knee Surgery and Related Surgery makes its debut on September 1st, 2011, replacing The Journal of Korean Knee Society (pISSN 1225-1623, www.koreaknee.or.kr) that has been published since 1989 by the Korean Knee Society. Since its establishment in 1983, the organization has been committed to promoting clinical and basic research in the field of knee surgery and has grown to more than 700 lifetime members. Launched in 1989, The Journal of Korean Knee Society has been published quarterly since 2009 and made its mark as one of the most advanced journals on knee surgery thanks to the encouragement and support of the members. To build on this momentum, the Korean Knee Society publishes an English journal that addresses research on knee surgery performed in Asia and the world and will help domestic researchers expand their international presence as well. Clinical studies presented by domestic orthopedic researchers are receiving international recognition and their publications in international journals are cited more often than before. I hope Knee Surgery and Related Surgery (www.jksrr.org) will join the ranks of the prestigious international journals and welcome generous support from members of the Korean Knee Society.
